When we look at an artwork, we can usually say, “This a painting” or “That is a sculpture.” However in contemporary art, there are some artworks that break all these ‘rules’ and look like a painting, sculpture and installation all in one.

Singapore Art Museum presents Medium at Large, an exhibition that looks at artworks often created by unusual methods and materials. These materials range from human hair, to whitening soap, rattan, oil paint, even to sound, text and language. In doing so, the works on show ask questions about people’s experiences, encounters and understanding of art.

Let’s take a closer look at some of these works!

1. What do you think the following words mean? Draw them in the boxes provided.

a) a painting

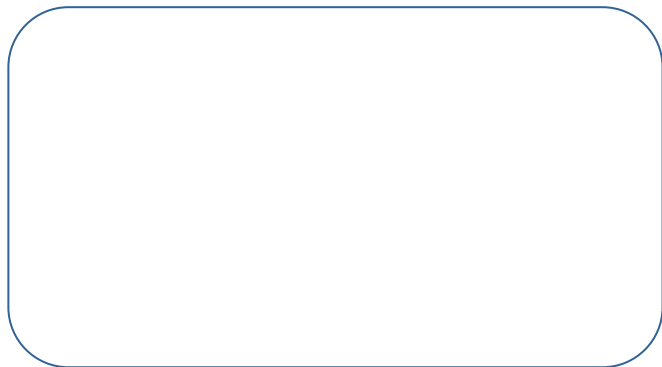

b) a sculpture

c) an installation

d) a photograph

Gallery Discussion

What do the above words mean to you? Have a discussion with your teachers and friends and hear what they have to say.

2. Now match them to their descriptions below! The first one has been done for you.

Painting

The art or process of producing images on photosensitive surface

Sculpture

A category of art in which artists use their body as a medium to create art by performing actions in front of an audience

Video

An art practice that uses music, produced sounds and sound technology to create an experience in listening and hearing

Photography

A piece of art that is made by carving or moulding materials into a three-dimensional form.

Installation

A practice of applying paint onto a flat surface

Sound art

A mixed-media artwork (an artwork that is made using different types of materials) that occupies a space in which a spectator can either stand at a distance to view or enter and view

Performance art

A form of contemporary art that involves the creative use of images and video technology

3. What do you think the word “medium” means in art? Colour your answer below!

A type of size

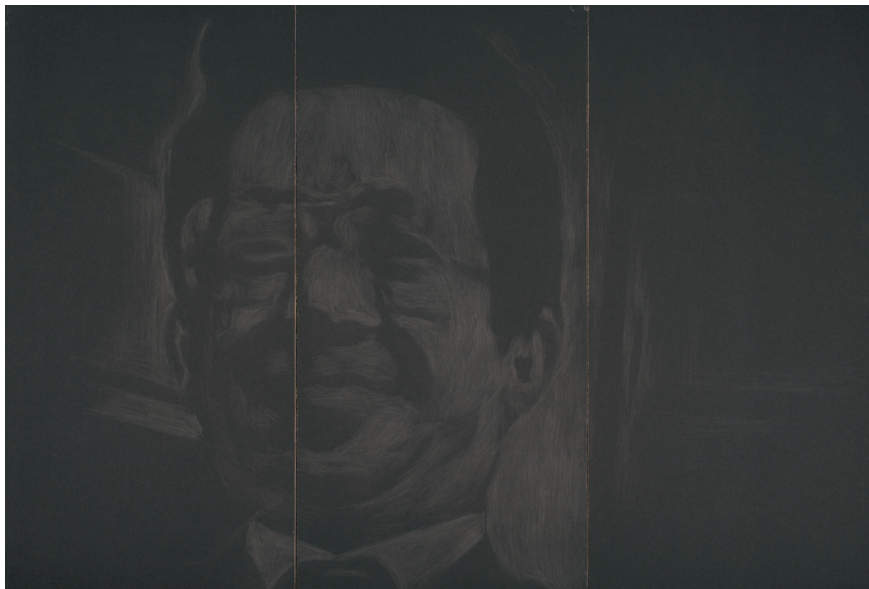

Someone who claims to be able to communicate with ghosts

Materials used in art

Go to Level 1 Galleries (turn right at the Glass Hall)

Now look for the artwork Marcial Bonifacio.

4. Observe this artwork. If you were to use five words to describe how you feel about this artwork, what would they be and why?

Empty rounded rectangular box for student response.

The portrait that you see here is of the late Benigno Aquino. A portrait is a painting, drawing, photograph or engraving of a person, especially one depicting only the face or head and shoulders.

5. Have you seen portraits before? What are they usually made of and how are they usually shown? Colour your answer below:

Painting	Installation	Sculpture	Photography
----------	--------------	-----------	-------------

6. Now look at this artwork. What material do you think is used to make this artwork? (Hint: read "Did You Know?" below)

DID YOU KNOW?

Marcial Bonifacio is the alias of Benigno Aquino, an opposition senator of then Philippines President, Ferdinand Marcos. Aquino was assassinated by a gunshot upon his return from exile in Manila International Airport, despite repeated warnings not to return. His death was not in vain as this assassination brought down the dictator Marcos.

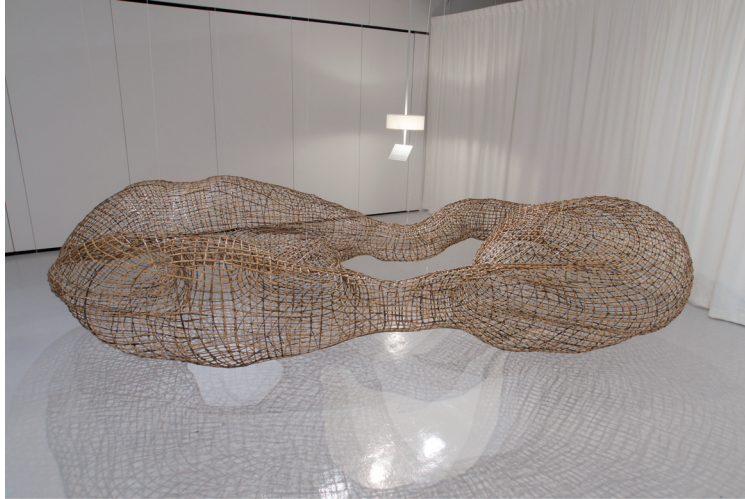

7. In what ways do you think this way of creating the portrait is appropriate?

8. If you were to create a portrait of your favourite idol, what material would you use, and why do you think this material is suitable?

Go to Level 2 Galleries (through Level 1 Galleries and up the stairs)

Look for the artwork by artist Sopheap Pich.

9. What comes to mind when you look at this word below?

C Y C L E

Draw or write your answer in this space below.

10. Observe the material used here. What is it? (Hint: it is a material used to make baskets.)

The material is _____.

11. Observe the artwork. Does this shape look familiar? What do you think it resembles? (Hint: it is an organ in your body and is used for digestion.)

DID YOU KNOW?

To many Cambodians, the stomach is where people feel the pain of war and poverty most strongly, as they were always hungry during these periods.

The artist Sopheap Pich wanted to convey this idea using a material that Cambodian people can relate to. The material used here is usually found in traditional Cambodian crafts and provided extra income for families. As this material is related to survival and preservation of heritage, the artist seeks to reconcile Cambodia's rich material culture with its history of war and poverty.

Look for this artwork in the gallery.

12. What is the title of this artwork?

The title is _____.

13. Look closely at this artwork. What material is it made of?

14. If you could wear this artwork, would you wear it and why? How would you feel if you could put this on?

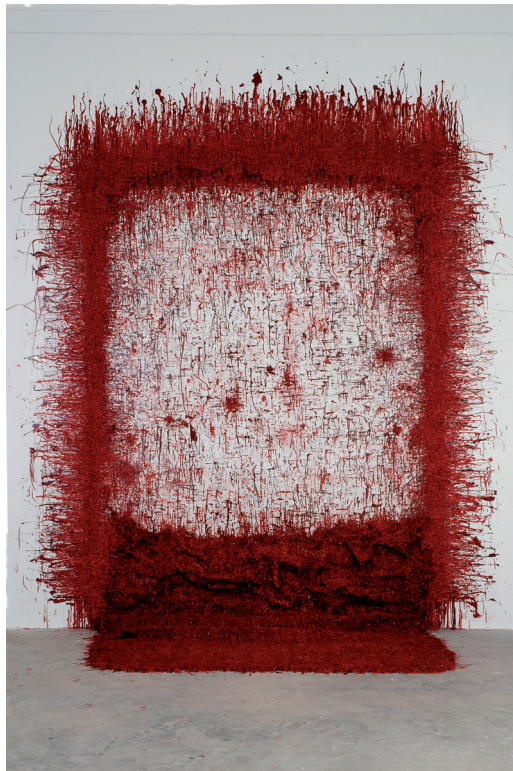

The hairstyle you see here is popular among young girls in rural Java during a certain period of time.

15. What hairstyles are popular today in your culture? Draw them below.

16. Imagine if you were to wake up with no hair one day. How would you feel? Why do you think you will feel this way?

17. Why do you think hair and hairstyles are important? What makes you say that?

Look for this artwork Status.

18. Take a closer look at this artwork (but do not touch it). Observe its details.

Have you seen this material before? What is it? How has this material been used in an unusual way?

Artworks can be grouped into various mediums.

19. What do you think is this artwork's medium? Circle your answer below:

Painting

Installation

Photography

20. Looking at your previous answer, why do you categorise the artwork as such?

21. Observe the colour(s) and textures used in this artwork. How do they make you feel?

22. What does this artwork look like or remind you of? What makes you say that?

DID YOU KNOW?

Although this artwork was created mainly using acrylic paint, it is not just a painting but can be considered a sculpture and an installation as well because it looks three-dimensional.

Look for the artwork The Charity Lady by Malaysian artist Wong Hoy Cheong.

23. How would you describe the medium of this artwork? Circle your choices below:

Drawing

Sculpture

Photograph

Painting

Compare the artwork The Charity Lady by Wong Hoy Cheong and The Charitable Lady by Jean-Baptiste Greuze below:

24. In what ways are they similar?

Wong Hoy Cheong references Jean-Baptiste Greuze's The Charitable Lady with his artwork here and makes it more relevant to his background as an Asian.

25. Observe the details of his work. What are some elements or characters that he had changed to reflect an Asian context? What do you think he is trying to convey?

DID YOU KNOW?

Jean-Baptiste Greuze was born on 21 August, 1725 in Tournus, France. The Charitable Lady was painted in the 1750s and was done in the style of realism. Realism in painting means to paint objects as they are. Through vivid facial expressions and dramatic gestures, Greuze introduced a new idea that painting should relate to life and educate viewers on values such as filial piety and being charitable.

Go to Level 2 Galleries (turn left at the Chapel)

There is an artwork in the gallery where its objects are made up of materials that are not what they seem. Can you find the artwork shown below?

26. Fill in the blanks below to reveal the title of this artwork.

E ___ h o ___ ___ l ___ a

DID YOU KNOW?

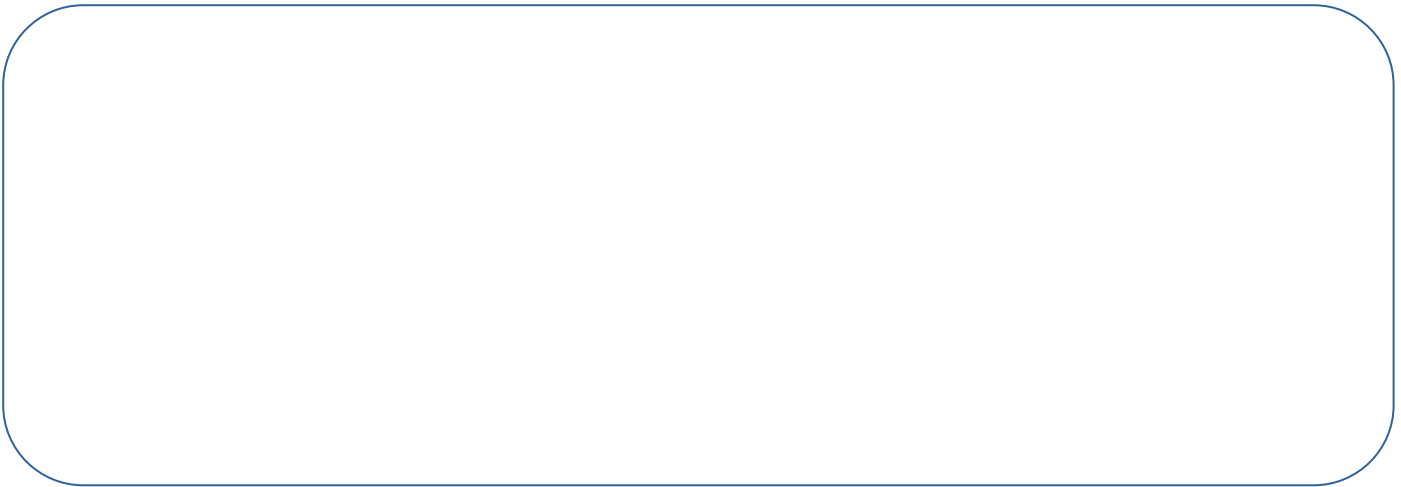

Each of the objects is a replica of an object from real life and the artwork as a collection plays with the idea of echoes, suggesting stories about the life 'lived' by these objects.

27. Identify at least three objects seen here in the work.

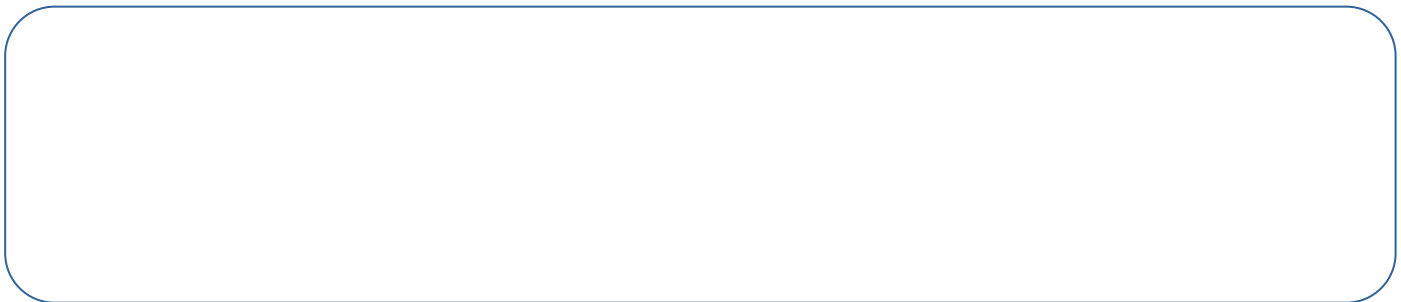

28. What materials are they usually made of?

29. Think about your favourite object. It could be your favourite car, cup or pencil box. Draw it here.

30. What material is your object made of? Imagine you could use a different material to make it. What would it be and why?

DID YOU KNOW?

In this artwork, the artist Gary-Ross Pastrana used commonly found materials in the Philippines to imitate the actual object. For example, the cassette tape and record are made of sawdust and glue. The picture frame is shaped from ashfall from the Mt. Pinatubo eruption, and the 'snow' that the boots are standing in is made from the stuffing of baby diapers.

Were you able to guess that?
